Dozens of people in Anoka were able to spending Christmas back in their apartments thanks to the city.

The city had condemned the Golfview Apartments after a sewage pump broke earlier this month and flooded the entire first floor.

Toilets weren't working and drains were clogged.

The city gave the landlord until the morning of Dec. 24 to fix the problem. When he didn't the city stepped in and made the repairs. The city also paid to help clean the sewage out of the apartments.

Anoka city officials said the landlord will get a bill for the repair work and will also be fined for failing to do the job himself.
